Part III Statement of Program Service AccomplishmentsCheck if Schedule O contains a response or note to any line in this Part III ☒

1	Briefly describe the organization's mission: QuestCare LifeStyle Solutions Inc. empowers individuals and organizations by connecting people to essential resources, strengthening nonprofit capacity, and building accountable, standards-driven systems that improve quality of life and community outcomes. The organization focuses on community access navigation, nonprofit infrastructure development, technology integration, referral coordination, and collaborative partnerships that improve service accessibility, transparency, and long-term sustainability for underserved and rural communities.
2	Did the organization undertake any significant program services during the year which were not listed on the prior Form 990 or 990-EZ? ☒ Yes ☐ No If "Yes," describe these new services on Schedule O.
3	Did the organization cease conducting, or make significant changes in how it conducts, any program services? ☐ Yes ☒ No If "Yes," describe these changes on Schedule O.
4	Describe the organization's program service accomplishments for each of its three largest program services, as measured by expenses. Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations are required to report the amount of grants and allocations to others, the total expenses, and revenue, if any, for each program service reported.
4a	(Code:) (Expenses $ 28,500 including grants of $ 0) (Revenue $ 78,500) QuestCare LifeStyle Solutions Inc. (QCLS) was founded through more than 20 years of direct operational leadership experience spanning Medicaid-funded disability services, nonprofit administration, compliance oversight, transportation coordination, enterprise technology systems, process optimization, and community support operations involving underserved and vulnerable populations. Organizational leadership experience included oversight of multi-department operations, Medicaid compliance environments, transportation logistics, enterprise technology coordination, operational accountability systems, staff development, financial oversight, and strategic planning initiatives serving individuals with disabilities and complex support needs across both nonprofit and corporate environments. QCLS was created after years of direct observation of recurring failures within fragmented healthcare, disability, behavioral health, nonprofit, and social support systems that frequently left vulnerable individuals and families without coordinated follow-through, measurable accountability, or confirmed access to essential services. QCLS was established on the principle that access should be achieved, not simply referred. The organization developed its Community Access Navigation and Systems Coordination initiative to address documented service fragmentation, transportation barriers, (Continued on Schedule O, Statement 3)
4b	(Code:) (Expenses $ 22,000 including grants of $ 0) (Revenue $ 0) QuestCare LifeStyle Solutions Inc. (QCLS) developed its Organizational Support, Compliance, and Nonprofit Capacity Building initiative to address increasing operational instability, infrastructure deficiencies, governance challenges, technology gaps, fiduciary pressures, and sustainability barriers affecting nonprofit organizations throughout Madison County, Henry County, and surrounding rural Indiana communities. QCLS was founded through more than 20 years of operational leadership experience spanning nonprofit administration, Medicaid-funded disability services, enterprise technology systems, transportation coordination, compliance oversight, process optimization, and community support operations involving vulnerable and underserved populations. Through direct operational experience, organizational analysis, and nonprofit sector research, QCLS leadership identified that many community organizations struggle not because of lack of mission or community need, but because they lack the sustainable infrastructure, accountability systems, strategic planning capacity, governance support, technology integration, and operational readiness increasingly required within today's nonprofit environment. Nationally, the nonprofit sector represents more than 1.8 million organizations and employs approximately 12.8 million individuals; however, significant operational instability continues (Continued on Schedule O, Statement 4)
4c	(Code:) (Expenses $ 19,000 including grants of $ 0) (Revenue $ 0) QuestCare LifeStyle Solutions Inc. (QCLS) developed its Community Progression and Leadership initiative after identifying a recurring pattern throughout rural communities where individuals and families often receive temporary assistance yet remain disconnected from long-term progression pathways capable of helping them achieve sustained stability, participation, and upward mobility. QCLS determined that many people do not fail because support is completely absent, but because support is fragmented, reactive, temporary, and rarely coordinated in ways intentionally designed to continuously move individuals forward. The organization observed that many community systems continue operating within disconnected intervention models where nonprofits, agencies, and service providers frequently provide isolated short-term services without continuity structures capable of helping individuals progress toward long-term independence, workforce participation, mentorship, leadership development, civic engagement, and sustained community belonging. As a result, many individuals repeatedly cycle through temporary stabilization, disconnected referrals, inconsistent communication, duplicated intake systems, and recurring crisis conditions without measurable advancement beyond immediate intervention. Nationally, more than 771,000 individuals were identified during the 2024 (Continued on Schedule O, Statement 5)
4d	Other program services (Describe on Schedule O.) (Expenses $ 0 including grants of $ 0) (Revenue $ 0)
4e	Total program service expenses 69,500

Reasonable Cause Explanations

Explanation

QuestCare LifeStyle Solutions Inc. experienced delays in completing its Form 990 filing due to organizational startup and infrastructure development activities during its initial operational year. During the tax year, the organization focused on establishing governance procedures, financial tracking systems, program documentation standards, community partnership development, and administrative reporting processes necessary to support long-term nonprofit operations. Additional time was required to reconcile organizational records, compile supporting financial documentation, and ensure the accuracy and completeness of the return prior to submission. The organization has since implemented improved internal reporting and compliance procedures to support timely filings in future years.

community access navigation systems, technology-driven coordination tools, nonprofit infrastructure, and collaborative support networks focused on underserved and rural communities.

First Program Service Accomplishments Description

Description

referral failures, workforce shortages, technology limitations, and lack of coordinated accountability affecting underserved individuals and families throughout Madison County, Henry County, and surrounding rural Indiana communities. Nationally, approximately one in four adults in the United States lives with a disability, transportation barriers contribute to millions of missed healthcare appointments annually, and rural communities continue facing disproportionate provider shortages, economic instability, and access disparities. More than 60% of federally designated Mental Health Professional Shortage Areas are located within rural communities, while nonprofit organizations nationwide continue facing increasing pressure to demonstrate measurable outcomes, operational transparency, technology integration, and long-term sustainability. Indiana research further indicates that nearly 40% of households fall below the combined federal poverty and Asset Limited, Income Constrained, Employed (ALICE) survival threshold, demonstrating that many working households remain financially unstable despite employment. Regional analysis reflected similar concerns throughout the QCLS service area. Approximately 17.3% of Madison County residents and 16.6% of Henry County residents under age 65 live with a disability, while poverty and child poverty rates across portions of the service region remain above state averages. More than 22% of Henry County residents rely on Medicaid-supported healthcare coverage, and portions of the region continue experiencing shortages in primary care, behavioral health, transportation access, and coordinated support services. Many residents must routinely travel 30 to 50 miles to obtain specialized healthcare, behavioral health, housing, disability, transportation, and social support resources. Through direct systems observation, operational research, nonprofit engagement, and community analysis, QCLS determined that creating another isolated direct-service organization would not resolve the deeper coordination failures affecting vulnerable populations and community providers. The organization identified that many community barriers were rooted not solely in lack of services, but in disconnected systems, inconsistent accountability structures, transportation limitations, fragmented referral processes, insufficient technology integration, lack of measurable follow-through, and limited coordination capacity between providers and organizations. QCLS also recognized that the nonprofit and community support environment has fundamentally changed. Modern organizations are increasingly expected to operate with measurable outcomes, transparent governance, integrated technology systems, coordinated reporting structures, collaborative partnerships, sustainable operational infrastructure, and publicly visible accountability standards. At the same time, many rural and community-based organizations continue operating with limited administrative capacity, aging technology systems, fragmented communication processes, staffing instability, and growing difficulty competing for sustainable funding within an increasingly data-driven and compliance-focused environment. Public trust and donor behavior are also increasingly influenced by third-party transparency and accountability organizations such as Candid and Charity Navigator, where measurable outcomes, governance standards, operational credibility, and financial transparency significantly influence funding decisions and long-term sustainability. As a result, QCLS strategically shifted away from a traditional isolated direct-service provider structure toward a standards-driven community access navigation, systems coordination, and nonprofit infrastructure framework focused on strengthening existing nonprofit ecosystems and improving measurable access outcomes rather than duplicating fragmented services. QCLS leadership also incorporated strategic organizational and operational assessment frameworks emphasizing systems analysis, structured problem-solving, sustainability planning, risk mitigation, measurable outcome development, and accountability infrastructure capable of supporting long-term operational effectiveness and community trust. During 2025, QCLS conducted extensive resource and service-gap research, developed referral coordination models, initiated collaborative partnership outreach, advanced Customer Relationship Management (CRM) and website infrastructure planning, built accountability and referral completion frameworks, and prepared pilot systems intended to support participant intake, referral tracking, provider coordination, communication systems, data-informed decision-making, and measurable outcome reporting. During its foundational development phase, QCLS operated primarily through founder-supported funding and operational reinvestment strategies designed to prioritize infrastructure development, systems planning, compliance readiness, technology integration, and long-term organizational sustainability prior to large-scale fundraising or grant expansion activities. Organizational leadership intentionally reinvested available consulting and operational resources into foundational infrastructure, research, pilot preparation, and accountability systems development while operating without Executive Director salary compensation during 2025. The organization recognizes that the greatest barrier facing many communities is not simply the absence of services, but the absence of coordinated systems capable of ensuring accountability, continuity, and measurable outcomes across fragmented networks. QCLS therefore approaches community support as infrastructure work by developing technology-supported accountability tools, referral completion standards, nonprofit coordination systems, and collaborative operational models designed to strengthen providers, improve transparency, reduce duplication, increase donor confidence, and improve long-term community stability. Organizational resources were reinvested into infrastructure, compliance readiness, systems development, technology integration, community research, and pilot preparation activities. Guided by its mission and core principle, QCLS operates under the statement: 'We CARE for every life and EMPOWER every ability.'

Second Program Service Accomplishments Description

Description

throughout the sector. Research indicates that approximately 30% of nonprofit organizations fail within 10 years, while more than 50% operate with less than one month of financial reserves. Nearly half of nonprofit organizations report difficulty meeting operational expenses necessary to maintain staffing, infrastructure, compliance systems, and long-term service continuity. Administrative underinvestment is increasingly recognized as a major contributor to nonprofit instability, particularly among smaller and rural organizations attempting to balance direct community services with growing governance, reporting, compliance, and accountability expectations. QCLS further identified that many nonprofit organizations continue operating with fragmented spreadsheets, disconnected communication systems, aging technology infrastructure, paper-based operational processes, inconsistent reporting structures, limited donor management systems, insufficient outcome tracking capabilities, and minimal coordinated data infrastructure necessary to support modern fundraising, operational oversight, and measurable accountability expectations. Many smaller and rural nonprofit organizations also face disproportionate workforce shortages, transportation barriers, reduced philanthropic concentration, limited access to operational consulting, inadequate strategic planning support, and restricted access to technology modernization resources capable of supporting long-term sustainability and operational resilience. QCLS recognized that fragmented organizational systems and operational duplication often increase administrative strain across already under-resourced organizations, reducing collaborative effectiveness, limiting measurable community impact, and weakening long-term ecosystem stability. Public trust, donor behavior, fiduciary oversight expectations, and grantmaker evaluation standards have also fundamentally shifted throughout the nonprofit sector. More than 70% of donors now research organizations online prior to contributing, while third-party nonprofit transparency and accountability organizations such as Candid and Charity Navigator increasingly influence donor confidence, grant competitiveness, public credibility, partnership opportunities, and long-term organizational sustainability. QCLS also recognized the rapidly growing influence of institutional philanthropy standards and Donor-Advised Funds (DAFs) throughout the modern funding environment. National DAF assets now exceed hundreds of billions of dollars and continue influencing charitable giving trends, fiduciary oversight expectations, measurable impact reporting requirements, and long-term nonprofit funding strategies. Modern nonprofit organizations are increasingly expected to demonstrate transparent governance, ethical financial stewardship, measurable outcomes, coordinated reporting structures, integrated technology systems, strategic operational planning, collaborative partnerships, sustainability readiness, and publicly visible accountability frameworks capable of supporting increased scrutiny from donors, fiduciaries, grantmakers, and regulatory agencies. QCLS determined that many mission-driven organizations struggle to compete for sustainable funding not because of lack of community value, but because they lack the operational infrastructure, compliance readiness, coordinated systems, governance maturity, technology integration, measurable reporting capabilities, and accountability frameworks increasingly required within today's compliance-focused and data-driven nonprofit environment. In response, QCLS began developing standards-driven organizational strengthening and nonprofit modernization models informed by nationally recognized accountability frameworks, including the Standards for Excellence program developed by Maryland Nonprofits, with emphasis placed on ethical governance, transparency, measurable outcomes, donor confidence, strategic planning, sustainability preparation, operational accountability, technology integration, and long-term community trust. QCLS leadership also incorporated strategic organizational and operational assessment frameworks emphasizing systems analysis, structured problem-solving, sustainability planning, measurable outcome development, operational accountability, risk mitigation, and infrastructure effectiveness capable of supporting resilient and scalable nonprofit ecosystems. During 2025, QCLS conducted governance and compliance research, nonprofit systems analysis, collaborative outreach, infrastructure planning, standards-development activities, technology integration planning, strategic operational development, and ecosystem coordination preparation intended to support future nonprofit strengthening initiatives and scalable pilot implementation efforts. Planning activities included development of donor transparency systems, governance and policy framework concepts, referral completion accountability structures, strategic planning models, Customer Relationship Management (CRM) infrastructure planning, sustainability frameworks, coordinated reporting concepts, measurable outcome tracking systems, and collaborative operational structures designed to improve communication, reporting, organizational resilience, measurable impact, and long-term nonprofit effectiveness across fragmented provider networks. QCLS believes the future nonprofit environment will increasingly prioritize measurable stewardship, operational accountability, integrated technology systems, fiduciary transparency, compliance readiness, collaborative coordination, and publicly verifiable impact reporting. As a result, the organization intentionally adopted an infrastructure-first development strategy focused on building sustainable operational systems, accountability frameworks, coordinated data infrastructure, standards-driven governance models, and long-term organizational resilience prior to large-scale fundraising expansion. During its foundational development phase, QCLS operated primarily through founder-supported funding and operational reinvestment strategies focused on infrastructure development, systems planning, compliance readiness, technology integration, accountability systems development, strategic operational planning, and long-term sustainability preparation. Organizational leadership intentionally reinvested consulting and operational resources into foundational infrastructure, research, governance development, organizational planning, accountability systems, and pilot preparation activities while operating without Executive Director salary compensation during 2025. QCLS believes communities are strengthened when nonprofit organizations operate with sustainable infrastructure, transparent governance, measurable accountability, coordinated systems, ethical leadership, and long-term public trust capable of supporting resilient community ecosystems and measurable impact. The organization therefore approaches nonprofit support as infrastructure stabilization, modernization, and ecosystem-strengthening work focused on improving operational sustainability, increasing donor confidence, supporting standards-based accountability, reducing fragmentation, strengthening collaborative effectiveness, and helping organizations adapt to evolving expectations surrounding compliance, transparency, fiduciary oversight, technology integration, measurable outcomes, and long-term nonprofit resilience.

Third Program Service Accomplishments Description

Description

Point-in-Time homelessness count, representing an 18% increase from the previous year, while public schools identified more than 1.5 million homeless students during the 2023-2024 school year, the highest number recorded nationally. QCLS recognized that many individuals experiencing instability never appear within traditional homelessness statistics because instability frequently develops long before housing is lost through financial strain, transportation failures, social isolation, caregiver fatigue, communication barriers, inconsistent support systems, mental health stressors, and lack of coordinated follow-through capable of helping individuals remain stable before crisis escalation occurs. Indiana research further demonstrates that nearly 40% of households fall below the combined federal poverty and Asset Limited, Income Constrained, Employed (ALICE) survival threshold, reflecting substantial populations living one emergency, healthcare disruption, or financial setback away from serious instability. QCLS further identified that long-term instability is frequently accelerated by social disconnection, absence of mentorship, and declining community engagement. National public health research from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that approximately one in three adults experience loneliness, while one in four lack adequate social and emotional support, conditions increasingly associated with depression, anxiety, unemployment, housing instability, chronic illness, and long-term economic vulnerability. Through more than 20 years of operational leadership experience involving Medicaid-funded disability systems, nonprofit administration, transportation coordination, enterprise technology systems, compliance oversight, and community support operations, QCLS observed that many individuals successfully achieve temporary stabilization yet remain disconnected from long-term progression opportunities involving mentorship, workforce engagement, leadership development, volunteer participation, and sustained community involvement. National mentorship research further reinforced this concern by demonstrating that one in three young people reach age 19 without a mentor, while mentored youth are significantly more likely to enroll in college, maintain employment stability, volunteer within their communities, and develop leadership capacity later in life. Additional research from Opportunity Insights found that children raised within communities demonstrating stronger social connectedness and cross-community interaction are substantially more likely to rise out of poverty, reinforcing the organization's belief that community connection is not simply social support, but long-term mobility infrastructure. QCLS also recognized that many rural communities continue facing increasing youth disengagement, workforce migration, declining civic participation, digital access barriers, and reduced community connectivity capable of weakening long-term community resilience and future economic sustainability. Indiana Civic Health research identified continuing declines involving social connectedness, public discussion, and institutional engagement despite increases in volunteerism and charitable activity, further reinforcing the need for stronger progression-focused community ecosystems. In response, QCLS began developing collaborative progression models designed to strengthen mentorship, continuity, engagement, communication accessibility, leadership development, volunteer participation, and long-term community connection through coordinated support ladders and relay-style progression systems intentionally structured to help individuals continuously move beyond temporary stabilization toward long-term participation, dignity, leadership, economic mobility, and sustained community belonging
